Vive Alameda Habitat 3 Fiesta: A celebration of Neighborhoods Capitalizing on Heritage for Urban Sustainability

Vive Alameda is an official Habitat 3 Village project designed to demonstrate the culture and heritage elements of the New Urban Agenda in action in Quito's La Alameda neighborhood. Located just blocks from the CCE, this 19th century barrio is a key connector between Quito's World Heritage city center and the modern city to the north. The Project engaged the community to identify valuable heritage elements within the neighborhood – tangible and intangible – and to explore how to transform those elements into scalable tools for urban resilience. The finale of the Project is a "charrette"/fiesta that will bring together locals and international visitors in a dialogue about how heritage contributes to a sustainable future. The event includes a cocktail reception and an outdoors heritage festival.
